12 Car Run

Sunday 12th August 2018

We're going to try something!

AMSC are running a 12 car permit regularity series on a Sunday morning through the summer which understandably doesn't get a full entry because regularities are a bit tricky.

However, we have a full complement of controls and marshals and it seems a shame not to use them and the MSA Permit to the max.

Therefore, we are going to open the unfilled entry slots to allow totally novice navigators a chance to put a marked map route on to the road.

You will be given a proper set of the usual 12-car-type nav instructions the day before, so you can do the plotting at home, like a table-top rally.

You then bring your completed route to the start so that we can check it and make sure that you have it all right. We do this for the Regularity crews anyway if they wish.

You will then drive your route as if on a proper rally but without the time pressure of a 30mph average. You will only have to get to the controls before they close. Other than that, there won't be any timing involved. You will just need to follow your route.

The Summer Regularities are very social. We even have a coffee break at half way and we finish at a pub for lunch. We are planning on trying this nav exercise at the next AMSC Regularity on August 12th. starting at Parham near Framlingham and finishing at Saxtead.

The Run is open to any member of an AMSC Club and other invited clubs. The Run will not be competitive, and we won't make any awards.

If you want to fill the gap between a table-top and a full 12-car and get some practice converting a map route to the road, this is the ideal chance.
